

Don't Worry About That Bald Spot

Don't Worry About That Bald Spot for if the scalp is smooth and shiny the baldness has come to stay. Better direct your apprehension toward the hairs immediately surrounding the spot, for they will be the first to go, unless you kill the dandruff germ and keep it out of the scalp with Newbro's Herpicide.

The time to save your hair is while you have hair to save. Extraordinary results sometimes follow the continued use of Newbro's Herpicide.

Doctor Waterhouse, a well known physician of Iowa, and a member of the firm of Dyer & Waterhouse, advised the Rev. R. N. Toms, Pastor of the First Presbyterian Church at Charter Oak, Iowa, to use NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE; read his letter about it.

Messrs. Dyer & Waterhouse, Druggists, Charter Oak, Iowa.

Gentlemen—The Herpicide you recommended to me for use as a remedy for dandruff and baldness has proved a great success. I have used only one bottle and the result is surprising. The scalp has been thoroughly cleansed from dandruff, the old hair has softened and strengthened; while soft, short hair has already appeared in the bald spots; and I have been greatly relieved from headaches. I most earnestly recommend all afflicted, as I have been, to try NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE.

(Signed) REV. R. N. TOMS, Pastor First Presbyterian Church, Charter Oak, Iowa.

DISTILLATION IN THE SOUTH

GOVERNMENT FIGURES ON WOOD DISTILLATION IN THIS COUNTRY—FLORIDA IS SECOND IN THIS NEW INDUSTRY.

The Bureau of the Census with the assistance of the Forest Service of the Department of Agriculture, has for some years collected statistics concerning the annual production of various forest products, and the preliminary figures on wood distillation for the year ending December 31, 1907, have just been made public.

Hardwood distillation: In the distillation of hardwoods, charcoal, gray acetate, and alcohol constitute the leading products. During 1907 the industry passed through its first year's experience under the working of the so-called free or denatured alcohol law. While this law exerted no disturbing influence on the market value of such products as charcoal, acetate of lime, pyrolytic acid, etc., its effect on wood alcohol was immediate and striking, resulting in a decline of more than 55 per cent in the market value of this commodity from an average value per gallon of 34 cents in 1906 to 15 cents in 1907. Otherwise, however, little or no evidence of the law's operation is discernible in the statistics of the industry for the country as a whole. In fact, the demand for charcoal has been sufficient to cause a slight advance in the average value of this commodity, along with a substantial increase in production, and this in a measure compensated for the fall in the price of alcohol.

There were 100 active plants reported for 1907, an increase of 14 over 1906. The total consumption of wood—chiefly birch, beech and maple—in 1907 was 1,219,771 cords, as against 1,144,896 cords in 1906, an increase of 74,875 cords. The production of charcoal increased from 45,657,721 bushels, valued at $2,565,940, to 50,772,233 bushels, valued at $3,828,992; that of gray acetate from 96,376,197 pounds, valued at $2,017,331, to 133,374,941 pounds, valued at $2,565,938; and that of brown acetate from 6,960,933 pounds, valued at $87,777, to 8,152,848 pounds, valued at $94,446. The reported yield of crude charcoal on the other hand, decreased from 7,871,469 gallons, with a value of $2,676,191, to 7,741,645 gallons, with a value of $1,153,307, a loss of 129,824 gallons, or 1.6 per cent, in quantity, and of $1,522,884, or 56.3 per cent, in value.

The leading states in hardwood distillation on the basis of wood consumed were Michigan, Pennsylvania, and New York, in the order named, these states consuming in 1907 89.2 per cent of the total amount of wood utilized in this branch of the industry. Of these states, Michigan and New York show substantial gains over 1906, both in the quantity of wood consumed and its products, while a slight decrease appears in the total for Pennsylvania. As is the case with softwood distillation, the location of this branch of the industry is determined largely by the distribution of the woods which constitute its raw material.

Softwood distillation. In the distillation of pine and softwoods generally turpentine is the leading product, with charcoal, oil and tar as products of secondary importance. Longleaf pine supplies the bulk of the raw material, though other species of pine as well as other conifers are used. On the whole, the showing for 1907 in this branch of the industry was satisfactory. While the inquiry disclosed only 31 plants in operation as against 32 in 1906, the quantity of wood consumed increased from 50,234 cords to 61,149 cords, or 21.7 per cent. This increase was accompanied by an advance in the average cost per cord from $2.58 to $3.44. The total yield in 1907 of turpentine, the leading product, was 654,711 gallons, as against 503,427 gallons in 1906, an increase in quantity of 151,284 gallons, or 30.1 per cent, while the average value per gallon remained substantially the same—about 47 cents. The production of tar and oil increased from 773,128 gallons, valued at $81,797, to 1,152,752 gallons, valued at $127,531. The production of charcoal also showed marked increase, from 791,887 bushels, valued at $44,381, to 1,158,364 bushels, with a value of $102,411.

The leading states in this branch of the industry are North Carolina, Florida and Georgia, in the order named, Georgia and Florida having exchanged places since 1906.

It Can't Be Beat. The best of all teachers is experience. C. M. Harden, of Silver City, North Carolina, says, "I find Elder's Bitters does all that's claimed for it. For stomach, liver and kidney troubles it can't be beat. I have tried it and find it a most excellent medicine." Mr. Harden is right; it's the best of all medicines also for weakness, lame back and all run-down conditions. Best too for chills and malaria. Sold under guarantee at all drug stores. 50c.

HIPLESS WOMEN, DAME FASHION HAS DECREED

The Thih Lady Will Be the Real Thing This Winter, and the Lady With the Rotund Contour Will Be Strictly Passe.

By Catherine Mann-Payzant.

New York, Sept. 12.—New styles of gowns for fall and winter wear will transform the women of the metropolis into hipless and bustless creatures, as straight up and down as mere men. All the alluring curves and the attractive plumpness of bygone days are under the taboo of fashion. The editorial declaration of Mr. Brisbane that "women should be built like an onion and dress as part" has been disregarded. This much is shown by the advance exhibitions of the modistes. The tunic, the semi-princess and empire modes have succumbed to the edict of fashion and are now being built in the manner approved by the current fad.

The woman of no figure, created along the architectural lines of a beanpole, will find the new mode a blessing, and may discard the pads and other accessories with which she has "built up" her figure. For the plump sister, conformity to the straight-up-and-down style will not be so easy. There will have to be many readjustments and much lacing and discarding of surplus undergarments to secure the desired effect.

This new mode, means a complete change in certain parts of the feminine wardrobe, and combination undergarments must be provided with care, but the designers are making all sorts of patterns and changes to meet the new need. The new fall fables are not generally on exhibition as yet, but from all signs one of the most popular fabrics for the autumn suit is serge, soft, pliable, with a finish almost as beautiful as silk. For the street a full finished serge will be worn and many are shown with chevron and herring-bone weaves. There is a serge that is well adapted for more dressy wear, with lustrous surface, soft enough to cling and pliable enough for folds and draperies.

Of course, underclothes are to be worn and the chiffon qualities are likely to be much used for dressy costumes for matinees and calling and for day receptions. There is every indication that all the popular silks of the summer will be worn during the coming season for the house at least, and the heavy weight pongee varieties for the street. The trimming alone will be of heavier, richer style; for today women depend more upon an extra piece of underwear or the outside cloak for warmth rather than heavy weight clothes. Summer styles for the past few years have spoiled us, and the white shirtwaist habit has made heavy waists unbearable.

New hats for the autumn and winter have made their appearance at all the millinery stores and departments and are attracting the usual amount of feminine attention and admiration. The shape is very similar to those shown through the summer, but the material is new, rep silk covered frames. A sailor modified in shape, with a very short droop in the back, raised a little at the sides and straight in front was covered with green rep silk of a rather dull dark shade, enlivened with a breast and two long wings in golden brown tones that fairly cover each side. It may be said right here that golden brown tints are extremely fashionable. A hat of this sort would be in good style if worn with a green and brown foulard and brown cloth jacket. Brown accessories such as shoes, stockings and gloves would accompany the costume.

A second example of these new hats was of blue silk, small in shape and turned up at the left side, a fold of the rep silk encircled the crown, and from beneath a huge mother of pearl buckle, showing grey and pink tints, sprang long drooping grey quills waving pink centers. The costume worn with the hat was of blue serge, consisting of princess skirt and cut-away jacket, a glimpse of cream net and a cretonne vest showing pink and blue in its pattern. Grey gloves and a blue umbrella, grey spats and purse went to make up the tout ensemble. A close-fitting little turban, long in shape from back to front, was black in color, laid in folds and ornamented with a buckle and with wings that stood almost upright at the front left side. The costume accompaniment was a black and white checked silk and black silk coat.

All sorts of shapes may be produced and a clever woman may make a little change here and there and with the aid of a bow (which will be made for one at any ribbon counter) a few flowers, or a quill or a wing, a fetching hat is ready for the early autumn days.

A word must be said about the cretonne hats, of which a number are seen every day, and for those faces that can wear a stiff hat or a color combination, they are immensely becoming and very smart. They are not hats easily constructed by the amateur milliner unless one can procure the hat already covered. During September and October such a hat will do good service and might be used for theatre wear during the winter if worn with a lightweight light-colored gown. A hat of this description was of white cretonne, showing tints in green, pink and a little brown, a drape of white silk laid about the crown and a long thick algerette waved over the left side, which was slightly raised. The gown was of fine white linen embroidered by hand, with a front panel in the skirt, the waist and Japanese bands all done in a pattern calling for soutache braid and Valenciennes embroidery in white. The guimpes of fine white net and Valenciennes lace, the gloves of white silk, white shoes and stockings and a white linen parasol having a monogram in Wallachian on one of its panels—a costume quite suitable for the autumn or winter informal occasions.

It is not alone on hats that cretonne is used. A long traveling coat of natural colored pongee had a deep collar and cuffs of cretonne; a cut-away coat of green cloth had a vest of cretonne in lavender tones embroidered in gold. A brown rajah jumper frock had trimmings of pink and white cretonne, a traveling dress in grey had a belt and collar decorated with a "set in" of deep rose and green and leaf brown cretonne. For a touch of color on an otherwise sombre costume, coat, frock or hat, the varied bright blended colors are an aid to distinction. A tall woman had a white linen skirt trimmed with a band of this material, and another whole linen suit was ornamented with cretonne in car and tabs on the skirt of rose color cretonne, that is, rose was the predominant tint, but none of the cretonnes are used in one color alone and therefore one may get a very good color combination to be carried out in the suit itself. Accessories of this material may be worn with many suits. A cretonne hand bag, a parasol trimmed with cretonne, a belt or collar or a coat set, are some of the little things that will give a natty finish to some costume.

Best the World Affords.

"It gives me unbounded pleasure to recommend Bucklen's Arnica Salve," says J. W. Jenkins, of Chapel Hill, N. C. "I am convinced it's the best salve in the world affords. It cured a felon on my thumb, and it never fails to heal every sore, burn or wound to which it is applied. 25c at all drug stores."

Defenders' Day.

Baltimore, Sept. 12.—Old Defenders' Day, the anniversary of the battle of North Point in defense of Baltimore against the British in 1814, was generally observed in Baltimore and throughout Maryland today, by proclamation of the mayor and governor it is a legal holiday in the city and state, all the banks, exchanges and public institutions being closed. Commercial business was partially suspended and several celebrations of a patriotic character were held. A project has been set on foot to hold an international exposition in this city in 1814, the centennial of the defense of Baltimore, which marked the climax of the war of 1812 and the birth of the "Star Spangled Banner."

ner." Preliminary steps have been taken to put the plan into effect.

Five thousand British soldiers, 2,000 sailors and 2,000 marines under General Ross and Admiral Cockburn, took part in the attack on Baltimore. Many of the troops had been with the Duke of Wellington in his victories over Napoleon's armies in Spain and were styled "Wellington's invincibles." They were defeated by the untrained defenders of Baltimore in a desperate battle on September 12, 1814. General Ross and 700 British troops were killed, while the loss to the American forces was only twenty killed.

It was this victory and the sight of "Old Glory" floating over Fort McHenry, after the terrific bombardment to which it was subjected the following night, that inspired Francis Scott Key to compose the American national anthem, the "Star Spangled Banner."

HE FIRED INTO TRAIN

Life Imprisonment For Man Who Killed Conductor in Strike District.

By Associated Press.

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 12.—A special from Centerville, Ala., says:

After being out all night, the jury in the case of Wasilije Valnovitch, charged with complicity in the killing of Conductor Joe Collins on the night of August 10, brought in a verdict of guilty, fixing his punishment at life imprisonment. The man is prosecuted as one of the parties that fired into a train near Blocton, Ala., loaded with soldiers going to strike duty in the coal mine district, and is one of the first convictions ever brought about for rioting in the mine territory. An alleged companion of the convicted one, Mihailo Lazornitch, was put on trial for the same offense today.

Teddy, Jr., is 21.

Oyster Bay, N. J., Sept. 12.—Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., son of his father, will be 21 years of age tomorrow, and already messages of congratulation and scores of gifts are arriving at the summer capital for the boy who will tomorrow be a man and a voter. The second Theodore is a studious young man, and has made a good record at Harvard. He has always taken part in athletics, but not to the exclusion of his studies. He takes an active interest in politics and, as is to be expected, largely shares the views of his distinguished father. Theodore, Jr., is the president's eldest son and is the first issue of Mr. Roosevelt's marriage with Edith Kermit, his second wife.
